

his wife's desk and give the detective the forbidden pamphlet on birth-control.

For this offense Sanger is now awaiting trial and is liable, if convicted, to imprisonment for one year and a fine of $1,000.

To save her husband Mrs. Sanger is about to return to the United States and take his place in the prisoner's dock, if she is permitted to do this. In a letter just received in New York from her hiding place in England the "Woman Rebel" says:

"I refused to go meekly like a lamb to the slaughter when I saw that the court was prejudiced against me. And now they try to trick me into rushing to the aid of my comrade and pal and to the aid of my three little ones, who will be left unprotected by this imprisonment. The sufferings of one who is loved by me could be no more deeply burned into my soul than the sufferings and anguish of other women's loved ones left alone in sorrow by death which has been caused by abortion.

Mrs. Sanger is an extreme radical on all subjects, but the women who have rallied to her aid by the formation of the Birth Control league represent every shade of liberal opinion in New York.

On the league's executive committee are Jessie Ashley, prominent woman lawyer, and Mrs. Clara Gruening Stillman, Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett and Anita C. Block, well-known writers and suffragists. Henrietta Rodman, the militant teacher who led the recent victorious fight for teacher-mothers against a reactionary board of education, is also interested.

Men members of the league include Lincoln Steffens, Bolton Hall, Paul Kennaday, Otto Bobsien, James E. Morton, Jr.; Chas. T. Hallinan and Winthrop Lane.

Chicago Chapter Bohemian Alliance, 80,000 members, forwarded resolutions to Pres. Wilson, condemning sinking of Lusitania.

From top to bottom, Mrs. Sanger, Mr. William Sanger and Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett.
